

The Father Spoke at Every Turning Point

"You're My beloved Son, in You I'm well pleased."

MARK 1:11

Written by Bill Perkins

Jesus didn't move blindly through His mission.

At every major turning point,
the Father's voice came — clear, public, undeniable.

At His baptism
(Matthew 3:17; Mark 1:11; Luke 3:22),
the Father declared:
"This is My beloved Son,
in whom I am well pleased."
Jesus was stepping out of obscurity.
Before miracles.
Before public ministry.
The Father affirmed Him — both privately and publicly — with identity and delight.

At the transfiguration
(Matthew 17:5; Luke 9:35),
the Father spoke again:
"This is My Son,
whom I love.
Listen to Him!"
Jesus had just revealed
the path of suffering.
The disciples didn't understand.
So the Father interrupted the confusion — declaring Jesus not only beloved,
but authoritative.

Before the cross (John 12:28),

Jesus prayed:

"Father, glorify Your name."

The Father responded:

"I have glorified it
and will glorify it again."

Heaven confirmed that everything Jesus had done —
and everything He would endure — was already wrapped in glory.

You may not know this about Jesus:

The Father didn't just speak once.

He spoke at every pivot.

Every shift in direction.

Every step toward redemption.

His voice was not just affirmation —
it was announcement.

Identity.

Endorsement.

Coronation.
